The Howell Conference & Nature Center touches many lives each year — more than 10,000 camp children; 2,300 wild birds and mammals; 60 wildlife ambassadors; hundreds of groups; and thousands of individuals.

As a non-profit organization funded primarily through private donations, programs, and special events, your support matters. It matters to the child whose family cannot afford to send them to camp. It matters to the great horned owl brought to us with a broken wing. It matters to the at-risk group who came to do the high ropes course and also found themselves. It matters to our volunteers who spend countless hours caring for the wild animals in our infirmary and Wild Wonders Wildlife Park. It matters to our staff who take great pride in inspiring appreciation, respect, and conservation of our natural world.

Whatever the amount of your gift, it matters — because it helps ensure the Nature Center is here, now and in the future. Thank you for choosing to support the Howell Conference & Nature Center. Your donation is proof that our work matters.
